Abstract

[Abstract] A resample length L between sampling points to resample a linear object is set so that an error Er between the resample shape concatenating the sampling points as a line and the linear object does not exceed a predetermined allowable error. The allowable error is predefined and the resample length L is determined so as not to exceed the allowable error, so that the resample shape well follows the linear object.